November 15, 2006
The Teaching Learning and Technology Program enables SUNY to achieve its academic mission through continual innovations and enhancements in educational technology.

TLT is a program of the Office of the Provost administered through Learning Environments.
TLT Mission

• Support the TLT centers on SUNY campuses
• Offer online opportunities and resources for faculty
• Sponsor and conduct research on TLT issues
• Collaborate with SUNY “clients” and partners
• Represent SUNY with TLT outside New York
Channels for Engagement

• An eclectic perspective
• Conferences, web presence, listservs
• Special interest groups
• Campus partnerships
• Future SUNY teaching commons
• Presence in larger online organizations
Support for SUNY TLT Centers

- Webteach-l
Welcome to TLT, your center for teaching and learning with technology.

What does TLT do?

Supports SUNY Campus Teaching and Learning Centers (TLCs) across the state — sponsors an annual conference for TLC directors, administrators, and interested faculty from the various SUNY campuses.

Sponsors the TLT Cooperative — online professional development courses taught by SUNY professionals who focus on best practices for teaching and learning in higher education.

Coordinates SUNY participation in the MERLOT project — an international consortium that supports creation, review and use of online teaching and learning materials.

Sponsors and conducts research into online teaching practices and course management technologies in cooperation with the SUNY Learning Network (SLN) and the Faculty Access to Computing Technology (FACT) committee.

Maintains a web repository of resources for online teaching; sponsors discussion lists for online educators.
